Waveland approves facility ordinance

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Waveland Board of Aldermen unanimously adopted an extended use ordinance addressing non-profit organizations' use of city facilities.

Proposed by Ward 2 Alderman Bob Hubbard, the ordinance defines extended use as "occupancy for more than two days" and allows the board power to terminate any agreement should the area be needed by the city.

It states Mayor Stella Frilot and the board shall declare which facilities are available for extended use, and outlines advertisement and application procedures.

Ward 1 Alderman Barbara Rappold read a letter from Frilot, who was absent. It spoke of the city's desire to legally provide space for non-profit groups, such as the St. Vincent de Paul Society and the Hancock County Humane Society, both of whom operate second-hand stores as a means of support.

Frilot suggested the board consider placing unoccupied city space out for bid, citing the legality of their ability to gen-

Port and Harbor plans Industrial Park rail spur

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission authorized April 13 engineering plans for an 1,800-foot rail spur to serve the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Commission director Harold "Buz" Olsen stated Coast Electric, through the Rural Electric Power Association Program, offered the commission a $100,000 loan under a program to enhance economic development.

He explained the loan offers zero percent interest, and it is to be paid back within five years at approximately $16,000 a month.

The commission is required to put up a matching $100,000. The spur line will accommodate 18 to 20 railroad cars. It will be used to transfer and park rail cars as they are moved throughout the park.

Commission engineer Carlos Cordon estimated the total project cost at $180,000. He projected one month for specification preparation and another two weeks minimum before the job could be opened for bids.

Airport committee chairman Pete Beebe moved the commission prohibit all vehicles from runways at Stennis Air Park unless they be official or on airport business.

Beebe stated the motion was prompted by a request for partial use of the airport runway for a hang-gliding club. The hang-gliders were to be towed and released.

"The committee would prefer to see airport activities business related," Beebe commented.

Olsen stated, according to Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) regulations, the commission needed only to enforce existing authority to regulate the type of activities deemed preferable.

The commission voted to exclude all vehicles not pertaining to air port business.

Commission members approved motion to obtain an appraisal on a triangular piece of property, measuring 75 feet in length per side, adjacent to Industrial Park tenant Con-Tech Power Systems.

Olsen stated Con-Tech requested approval of a planned expansion to the existing building for additional office space, along with a development of a parking area.

He added Con-Tech was a good tenant whose work force of 55 has more than doubled in five years.

"Essentially, he is adding money to collateral value," Olsen said. The commission presently owns the Con-Tech building and land and is selling it to Con-Tech on a lease/purchase agreement.

It was suggested during the meeting that the commission give the land to Con-Tech since plans include improvements to the existing property.

Commission attorney Robert Genin objected to the give away proposal for fear of setting a precedent.

Commission members approved renewal of a car washing contract with GE Plastics for another year.

The contract includes rail car washing prior to refilling of plastics for transportation at the commission-owned car wash facility. Payment for a minimum of 800 cars per month are guaranteed under the contract.

A contract renewal with Phillips Aviation for the Stennis Air Park fixed-based operator's lease agreement was approved by the commission.

In other business the commission approved:

—the general operating docket, items 1-77;

—the railroad operating docket;

—the industrial park revenue docket;

—the rental facilities docket;

—the T-hanger facility docket.

Argentina, Czechoslovakia, the United Kingdom and Australia.

The company purchased Pearl River Polymers in May 1990 and currently has a $4 million expansion underway, but Fraizer said, "The eight acres in Louisiana is rapidly running out of room."

"Attempts were made to purchase adjacent property to the facility but were unsuccessful, so we looked for a site within 30 to 40 miles so that joint services could be provided by one of the two sites."

SNP's sales amount to approximately $200 million annually.

In addition to the Pearl River, La., facility, the company has a second wholly owned subsidiary, Chemtall, in Riceborough, Ga.

Infrastructure work at the Hancock County site, including constructing a wastewater treatment facility, could begin as early as fall, followed by the start of construction next year.

The size of the Port Bienville plant "depends on how many pending projects actually come to fruition," said Fraizer. He said the company is "keeping our options open for additional adjacent land" at Port Bienville.

Diamondhead's Business of the Year honors went to James C. English, owner of Coast TV Cable at Diamondhead.

Jimmy Heidel, Mississippi's Department of Economic and Community Development executive director, was the keynote speaker.

The recent appointment by Gov. Kirk Fordice said, "You have a lot to be proud of as you look about your community," in commenting about Mississippi's economic development.

"The state needs to display the same kind of unity shown in Hancock County between the public and private sectors," Heidel added.

Heidel indicated one of the first concerns of Gov. Fordice was to address the needs of existing industries in the state by seeking ways and means to help with expansions.

The state economic leader reported indicators show there will be a loss of industrial jobs in the country within the next few years, but Mississippi has raw materials, manpower and unity to offer for the relocation of many industries.

The Salute was sponsored by the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, Board of Supervisors and Chamber of Commerce.

streets the land reverts back to the city?"

City attorney John Scafide told Wilkerson the city can't include such a clause in the ordinance.

Mayor Edward Favre told the council the only need he can imagine for those streets is a future residential development. "In that case, the developer has to provide access, not the city," he said.

Scafide reminded the Council that Charles Lambert, acting on behalf of Marlin Torgerson, had asked that the streets be abandoned so that the developer can map out a planned golf course.

After some further discussion, the Council approved the ordinance 3-1 with Sciaanna dissenting and James Rutherford absent.

Enough is enough

Several months ago we published an editorial chiding elected officials in Waveland for their constant bickering during public meetings.

We attempted to downplay the ugly verbal exchanges in our news coverage of the meetings, just in case we were fanning the flames by printing the snide, out-of-place remarks for those who did not witness them first hand.

To no avail.

Though the mayor and board members should disagree on issues, personal attacks have no place in a public meeting. The audience is treated to a side show, often erupting into laughter at the theatrics displayed.

Let's restore some dignity to these meetings. Personality conflicts must be put aside, and comments confined to the issues. The citizens of Waveland deserve nothing less.

"QUOTEABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It was a great feeling Friday morning to witness those honored at the annual Hancock County Salute to Business and Industry.

Among those honored, I have known some for just a short time and others for many years.

They are very deserving of the honors. I congratulate each and every one.

The Award of Excellence went to Dan Mortimer, president of Gulf Coast Fabrication, Inc., located at the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Gulf Coast Fabrication is the largest industrial employer in the county.

In addition to bringing jobs to our community he has also brought a help your fellow man attitude which has spread among his employees.

Retailer of the year honors went to Rooster's Restaurant, owned and operated by Andy and Lee Lott.

It just goes to show you what can be done with a run down small cafe and service station when someone has talent and culinary abilities.

I have visited their establishment and they do a very good job, and the many repeat customers verify this statement.

Industry of the Year honors went to Con-Tech Power Systems, Inc., located at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Harold Thibodeaux is president of Con-Tech, a supplier of marine and industrial switchgear, control and automation and power distribution equipment for vessels, drill rigs, platforms, etc.

I do know one thing, Con-Tech Power Systems pulled us out of a bind several years ago when we had some power supply problems with our printing press.

It was sure good to have someone with their talent located in our county.

Bay St. Louis Business of the Year went to Evergreen Florist and Garden Center.

Sam and Barbara Scafidi have been friends of mine for many years and I know they have worked very hard to get their business where it is today.

They take pride in their community and I really appreciate the beautification efforts they display at their business.

Congratulations and best of luck to Barbara and Sam.

Waveland Business of the Year honors went to Waveland Resort Inn.

Brothers Bill, Jim and Steve Lady, since taking over the complete operation of the Resort Inn, have done a tremendous job in the renovations of the motel and restaurant.

The food and service is the tops and many are talking about the tremendous turn-around.

They do a fine job for banquets and I was there Thursday for a great Retired Senior Volunteer Program festivity.

By the way, I know it is a team effort and it is great to see brothers working so well together.

Diamondhead Business of the Year honors went to James C. English.

English is owner of Coast TV Cable, which operates at Diamondhead. He is a big supporter of Diamondhead Academy and has been involved in several other fund raisers.

His contributions to Diamondhead are really appreciated by the residents of our fastest growing area.

This is a reminder about the Hancock County Exchange Club's Annual Fun Rais'n Auction to be held Friday, May 1 at the Civic Center on Longfellow.

A preview begins at 6:30 p.m. with the auction beginning at 7 p.m.

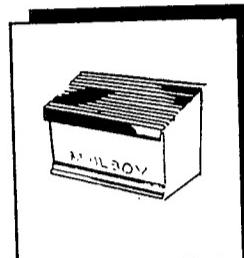

Proceeds from this auction go for the prevention of child abuse.

I hope there will be many bidders at the auction. I hope to see you there.

Special donation

A check for $100 and several bags of groceries were collected in a benefit basketball game recently between the employees of Coast Electric Power Association and WLOX-TV Station for the Hancock Food Pantry. Making the presentation were from right, Keith Hoda and Louis Lee to Helene Vernon, Food Pantry volunteer. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Spay/neuter program saves money in long run

Dear Editors,

Every year in America, up to 15 million dogs and cats are killed simply because there are not enough good homes for them.

They are sentenced to death for the "crime" of being born. Thank heaven most shelters at least try to administer that sentence in the most merciful manner possible.

But there is an alternative. Doesn't it make infinitely more sense to prevent pet overpopulation through reproductive control than to try and "cure" it by killing these poor animals?

Of course it does!

Especially when you realize that two uncontrolled breeding cats, plus their kittens and all their kittens' kittens if none are spayed or neutered, have the potential to multiply to more than 80 million cats during a 10-year breeding life.

In addition to making sense from a humane perspective, it also makes sense from an economic perspective. Every dollar spent by a community today on spaying and neutering dogs and cats can save $18 in the next 10 years.

Let's urge Bay St. Louis officials to act immediately to promote more aggressive spaying and neutering programs to stop this killing of innocent animals.

Sincerely,
John Wise

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI SENATE

Seafood transport bill benefits local economy

Tight legislative deadlines on revenue and appropriation bills controlled action in the Mississippi Senate last week.

All appropriation and revenue bills which originated in the House had to be acted on by Wednesday midnight, so we spent a lot of time wrestling with the state's budget.

Money is tight, and we are squeezing everywhere. Most agencies were lucky if they just broke even with last year's appropriation. Less fortunate were the universities and the community colleges. These institutions will get less money than they had four years ago.

Of special interest to the Coast was the funding for the Gulf Coast Research Lab, where a great deal of our seafood and fisheries work is done. The lab's appropriation was not as low as it could have been.

State funds were only cut by about $112,000 instead of the $758,000 originally proposed by the Appropriations Committee. Some budgets were increased over last year, the most controversial ones being the Governor's Office and the Governor's Mansion. At the request of the Governor, these were increased by about 10% over FY 92.

While I am convinced that the Governor's Office will spend the money well, I do not agree with spending extra money on these support services while we are cutting the essential services of government. Therefore, I voted against these appropriations.

All appropriation bills are very likely to end up in House-Senate conference committees, where compromise budgets will be hammered out.

The Senate Revenue Bill — which includes a one-cent sales tax and reductions in other taxes — was amended by the House of Representatives. The House reduced the money going to local governments which would have reduced local taxes, but added provisions to reduce car tags. The differences will be worked out in a conference committee.

In addition to appropriations bills, there were a number of general bills of interest. The Senate Corrections Committee recommended a bill to the full Senate which would restart the Parchman prison farm shut down in the 1970's. Under this bill, the inmates would raise their own food. The long term potential saving is $4 million a year.

Another general bill which has received a lot of attention would define the crime of stalking and make it a felony. Under current law, people who are deliberately harassed and intimidated by others have very little protection unless they get injured. This new bill, if it becomes law, will make a difference.

Finally, the Seafood Transport License bill which I sponsored was signed into law by the Governor last week. The transport license will make it more attractive for Louisiana fishermen to land their catch in Mississippi where we would benefit from the additional seafood business and the spinoff sales of fuels, hardware, transportation, meals and lodging. This bill was strongly supported by our local seafood industry.

This session is scheduled to end on May 10, so time is short to express your opinions on matters of concern to you.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Salute to Mississippi business

The Month of April has been declared "Business and Industry Month" by Governor Kirk Fordice.

It is only fitting that we take time to recognize the businesses and industries that are the lifeblood of Mississippi's economy. We depend on these businesses, just as they depend on us. Their contributions to community growth, tax revenue and employment opportunities serve to strengthen cities and towns across the state.

According to the 1991 Mississippi Statistical Abstract, there were 621 new and expanded industries in the state in fiscal year 1990. Along with those industries came over 15,000 jobs and a total investment of at least $855 million.

Those are pretty strong numbers considering the state of the national economy. And, it shows that Mississippi has something to offer to businesses and industries, whether they are new or expanding, big or small, locally owned or not. That something is a dedicated workforce, a convenient location to major markets, and a simple commitment to doing the best job possible for the benefit of everyone involved.

All across the state this month, we should take time to think about the impact which businesses and industries have on our state. And, it wouldn't hurt to let them know that their work isn't taken for granted.

So, the next time you see your local banker, or the manager at your grocery store, or the foreman at a plant site, tell him "thanks."

He'll appreciate it more than you realize.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

J.P. Comprett

Tax increase narrowly passes

The legislative spotlight was on financial matters again in the past week with the House of Representatives approving a $168.5 million tax bill aimed at generating funds for education and other pressing needs.

The hotly debated proposal was designed to raise money for education, including the universities and community colleges as well as public schools. Funds would be available in such areas as mental health, human services, and the correctional system as later determined.

The bill was approved 79-43, requiring 74 votes for passage, after narrowly failing on an earlier vote to get the 3/5th majority for adoption of a revenue bill.

A 2/3rd vote would be required in both chambers to override a potential veto if the bill eventually wins final legislative approval.

The House rejected an attempt to do away with various tax exemptions instead of boosting the basic tax rate, and an amendment to raise the sales tax by one-half percent instead of one percent.

As passed by the House, key features of the bill include a sales tax increase of one percent on items now taxed at six percent; removal of an individual nonbusiness deduction that taxpayers may claim on state income taxes;

Removal of the sales tax on wholesale soft drink bottlers; and deletion of the sales tax exemption on newspaper sales. The money from the newspaper sales tax, totaling around $2.6

million, is earmarked for the University Medical Center's intensive care unit.

A series of appropriation bills won House passage to provide operating funds for public schools, Medicaid, and other programs in the coming year, including $802.8 million for support of public schools through the state's Minimum Education Program, the largest single item in the General Fund budget.

A deficit $10 million appropriation was approved for the Minimum Education Program for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

Among several bills that won final legislative approval during the past week were proposals to provide stiff penalties for assaulting teachers and other school personnel; establish a new program to assist beginning farmers; and boost the amount of bonds from $35 million to $50 million that may be issued under the Economic Development Highway Program.

This is a program created in 1988 to stimulate economic growth by helping provide roads for major industrial projects.

The House voted to authorize more than $34 million in bonds for building projects at four universities including a fine arts building at Delta State and library additions at Mississippi State, Ole Miss, and Southern Mississippi. An amendment was adopted to issue $7 million for public libraries around the state.

Humane Society members and various other spectators responded with laughter.

Weidman's outburst was prompted by Colson inquiring about the board's seating order, stating he was tired of the present arrangement.

Earlier in the meeting, Ward 1 Alderman Barbara Rappold expressed frustration during a discussion with Weidman and stated, "I should have taken a nerve pill before coming here."

Weidman snapped back, "You should have taken the whole bottle."

Ward 2 Alderman Bob Hubbard declined a verbal exchange with Weidman, shouting, "I've had enough of you," and calling question for a vote.

Tisdale is married to the former Wanda Hughes, a real estate agent. They have two children, Errol, 11, and Virginia, 9.

Penrose said Tisdale's application was a "sleeper."

During the interview process, each of the board members had copies of all the applications for review. After studying all the applications, the board members ranked them, and narrowed them down during a special meeting to seven finalists. Tisdale was not one of them.

"We all had contacts, people who knew the applicants, that we could call and find out more about them. We didn't call references," Penrose said.

"When Gary (Yarborough) called one of his people, a retired educator, and asked if he knew the first person on the list, he decided to read the list to his contact.

"The man asked if we had Paul Tisdale on the list, and suggested we put him on. I think that one's a sleeper," he told Gary."

Penrose added Tisdale to the list, and at the next two special board meetings, the board interviewed the eight finalists.

"After the interviews, we said, 'Well, we've seen them all; we don't need to sleep on this,' and we ranked them again.

"Paul's application turned up at the top of each board member's stack."

The rest was fairly simple, Penrose said. She invited Tisdale and his family to meet with the board on the pretext of having one final interview with him, then arranged a small reception with the board members and the Tisdales.

At the reception, she gave him the good news.

"He didn't know what to say; I think he was in shock. And his wife—you could tell she was so proud of him; she just glowed," Penrose commented.

"We are so excited about having him with us; we just bubbles with enthusiasm for education and the students."

"And we are also very pleased to say that it took only a week from the time we started reviewing the applications to the time we signed a contract with him."

White pleads guilty to murder of Wallace

Eighteen-year-old Travis B. White of Kiln pleaded guilty in Bay St. Louis Thursday to a charge of murder in the 1990 shooting death of Howard "Wallace" Wallace.

White was originally charged with capital murder, murder committed during the commission of another crime, which carries a potential death penalty. He avoided the death penalty by pleading guilty to the reduced charge of murder, but faces a mandatory sentence of life in prison.

Although eligible for parole in 10 years, he was told by Judge James Thomas he probably wouldn't be released then.

White had turned 17 a month before he was charged in the kidnapping, killing and robbing of Wallace, who operated a 24-hour taxi service and was known for helping other people.

White was arrested on October 28, 1990, after Wallace was found dead in his cab in McLeod Park. His bank bag and pistol had been taken.

She added the current lease arrangement with St. Vincent de Paul appeared legal, with the exception that the space should have been advertised for bid, to allow opportunity to other organizations to compete for the area.

Society president Jay Fleuriet commented should the city open the facilities to bids, administration costs for the society could rise to such an extent that federal and local grants presently to support the organization could be jeopardized.

City attorney Lucien Gex stated the board could approve the proposed ordinance, adding it would be 30 days before it would become official.

Hubbard's proposal was prompted by a recent attorney general's opinion which stated, "permanent use of part of a city owned building...by a non-profit organization...would constitute an illegal donation."

The opinion also stated, "a municipality may allow non-profit, tax exempt organizations...use of public buildings...provided a uniform policy is implemented regarding all organizations using the facility."

Fleuriet added, "We are pleased with the passage of the ordinance. It definitely addresses the question of permanency and establishes a uniform policy, matching all the criteria needed."

Making new creations

Minister teaches self-esteem to children in his neighborhood

BY TRACI BONNEY

For many young people today, the word "family" brings to mind siblings, mother, maybe aunts and uncles, but — sadly, too often — not a father.

Having a father is important to children; psychologists, ministers and the Bible attest to that.

So, what do children do when their father is only a small, or even missing, part of their lives?

For the children of Charles Hawkins' neighborhood, commonly known as "Middletown" in Waveland, Charles is working to give fatherly guidance that may be lacking.

"We're getting the kids off the streets and meeting with them to teach them Biblically-based self-esteem principles," he said. "We want to show them there's a better way to live than messing with drugs and crime."

Charles, an ordained minister and award-winning bodybuilder, has founded New Creation Ministry, along with his wife Yvette and their friend Michael Lewis.

The name New Creation, which Charles said was Yvette's idea, is based on II Corinthians 5:17: Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; old things have passed away; behold, all things have become new."

In essence, the three-member ministry team is teaching the youth and teens how to be new creations by learning the things that are important to one's emotional and spiritual well-being.

The team holds weekly meetings at 7 p.m. on Tuesdays in the Hawkins' home at 610 Morris. Although these Tuesday night meetings have been going on for only a little over a month, attendance has mushroomed from 30 the first week to an average of 50 to 70 children and teens at the latest gatherings, Charles reported.

In fact, he said, the meetings need to be moved to a larger building. "I'm running out of room in my house."

Pizza donated from Domino's and video films are part of the weekly sessions. But food and entertainment are only a small portion of what New Creation gives the youth.

"I have a burden for these kids," said Charles, who has a 7-year-old son of his own. "It's a cry of my heart to see them restored in their emotions and spirits."

The meetings are just a start for the ministry. Charles said they plan to offer the youth camping trips, parties, "something to do."

Charles, who also works at Stennis Space Center and pastors the Power House of Deliverance Church in Abita Springs, La.,

At several points during the interview, the 27-year-old minister said, "It's time to make a change." Not surprisingly, he had recently heard the song by that title from Christian singers The Winans, and it had obviously left its impression.

"A lot of kids are in a whole lot of pain," he said. "They don't find any love at home, so they join a gang, or they get messed up with drugs — doing them, pushing them or both. I want to make them see that fast money only gets you one place: in jail.

"If I can help just one kid, it'd mean more to me than all those bodybuilding titles I've won."

"They just want somebody to say, 'I love you, I care about you; I'm concerned about you.'

"Martin Luther King is dead now; someone else has to have a dream for the people. If I don't do it, who will?"

Although Charles and his wife and Michael Lewis have taken on the task of teaching these children and teens how to be new creations, Charles is very clear about how he thinks this area will see the needed changes.

"It's going to take God to change our community."

Pass Christian Historical Society slates tour of homes

BY TRACI BONNEY

The antebellum seaside community of Pass Christian will showcase some of its brightest jewels May 3 when the Pass Christian Historical Society hosts the 1992 Tour of Homes.

Six buildings are included in the tour, which starts at 1:30 p.m. The Historical Society's headquarters is the first stop on the tour. The circa 1900 building was occupied by two banks, a doctor's office and the Harbor Shop before being bought by the society.

From there, those taking the tour will make their way into the past as they travel down East Scenic Drive to the Breaux-Clay Home, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Hines. This home, built circa 1895, once was called the Holiday House.

Moving further down the street and into the past, the next stop is the Courtenay House, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gallagher. Built circa 1875 by Clausel Courtenay, it was owned by his family until 1917.

The tour slips further into bygone days with a visit to the Legendre Home, built around 1850 and currently owned by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Faris. This plantation home features a beautiful fanlight above the door.

Then it's back to the 20th century with a stop at the Soria-Soule Home. This monumental, eclectic two-story stuccoed building with a tiled hip roof was built around 1920 by the Sorias of New Orleans and later owned by the Soules. It was also used at one time as part of the Kern School. A chandelier inside the house was once in the St. Charles Hotel in New Orleans.

The final stop on the tour is the circa 1922 home of Dr. and Mrs. C.D. Taylor Jr. The Taylor home is the only stop that is not on Scenic Drive; it's located at 722 East Second Street, although it originally was at 723 East Scenic Drive.

Designed by Goldstein Architects of New Orleans for William Burkenroad Sr., the spacious Colonial Revival dwelling was built by Frank Wittmann Sr. Typical of the period are the porte-cochere and glass-enclosed solarium. In 1964, Dr. Taylor had the building moved to its present location.

The Taylor house will be opened only from 3 to 5 p.m. when tea will be served.

Other features of the tour include a drawing for a door prize, and a Victorian boutique featuring local artisans and merchants, along with Historical Society members' items for sale.

Donations for the tour are $10 for adults and $8 for children.

Dr. Taylor, president of the society, said the money raised from the tour will go toward paying for the organization's headquarters and expanding the society's capabilities for storing photos, artifacts and city records entrusted to the society for safekeeping.

The Legendre Home, a typical plantation home constructed of white clapboard with tall windows, dark green shutters and wide galleries, was built by a Louisiana planter. For several generations it was the summer home of the Legendre family and later of the Walther family. Of particular note are the beautiful fanlight of the door and the cast-iron railings.

The Courtenay Home was built by Clausel Courtenay and was owned by the Courtenay family until 1917. It is a story-and-a-half cottage with a square-columned inset gallery. The plastered pedimented dormers were added at a later date.

The Breaux-Clay Home is a gracious two-story frame, hip-roofed Colonial Revival dwelling. The handsome Ionic-columned frontispiece surrounds the single-leaf door with leaded-glass upper panel and carved lower panel. The addition on the west side was built by Frank Wittmann Sr. It was called "Holiday House" when owned by the George Clay family.

203 East Scenic Drive

A one-story stuccoed-and-scored brick, Neo-Classical commercial structure with portico in antis, it was originally the Home Bank of Pass Christian, which was chartered in 1905 but operated for only a few years. The Bank of Pass Christian had the building in the 1920s but it, too, closed. From about 1940 to 1988, the building was owned by the E.A. Lang Insurance and Realty Company. The east side was used at various times as a doctor's office, and later as the Harbor Shop. It was bought in 1988 by the Pass Christian Historical Society.

nistration building at 1600 Government Street. The play is being presented in conjunction with the Ocean Springs Centennial celebration.

Clarence Darrow covers Darrow's recollections from early childhood through his turbulent career as a lawyer. Darrow will be played by Gulf Coast attorney Boyce Holleman.

CLOSE FRIENDS BECOME
EVEN CLOSER IN TIMES OF CRISIS

Like any good neighbors, our two adjoining nations of Canada and the United States have always enjoyed a friendly relationship, despite some minor differences. This has been evident from our 3,000-mile unguarded boundary line that spans the continent, and in recent years, by our joint participation in sports. Moreover, another ingredient was added during last year, with all its turmoil and startling developments on the world scene. It is in times of crisis that people and countries show what they are made of, and the similarity of our responses to these events has brought us even closer together. At our House of Worship, let us thank God for this wonderful relationship, and pray that it will continue forever, as an example to the rest of the world.

A living proof to all the world of faith in brotherhood.

Preparations are underway for the 1992 May Canton Flea Market Arts and Crafts Show.

The 27-year-old bi-annual market, held the second Thursday in May and October, was voted one of the top 20 events in the Southeast by the Southeast Tourism Society.

The May 14 show features some 1,000 arts and crafts exhibitors. Exhibitors are located at the historic courthouse grounds, the old Madison County jail and Fulton Street. Other exhibits can be found on Peace Street and at the Grace Episcopal and Sacred Heart Catholic churches.

An antique show and sale will be at the Sacred Heart Parish Center and the jail.

Exhibitors from as far away as Australia participate along with local vendors, selling handmade wares of all descriptions and a variety of plants.

For more information about the flea market, call 1-859-1307 or 1-859-8055, or write to the Canton Convention and Visitors Bureau, P.O. Box 53, Canton, MS 39046.

The week of the flea market will coincide with the opening of the Allison's Wells School for Arts and Crafts. Phase I of the school will begin Monday, May 17, in the Selm building in downtown historic Canton. More than 72 one-week intensive courses will be taught.

The school is the rebirth of the historic Allison's Wells

Resort and the Allison Art Colony of Canton, which existed from 1879 to 1963 when it was destroyed by fire.

Pass Christian weaver Helen Currie, Caire is a charter instructor of weaving for the School.

For more information about the school, call 1-800-483-2787 or 1-859-5826, or write Allison's Wells School of Arts & Crafts Inc., P.O. Box 950, Canton, MS 39046.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Artin' About provides information about fine and performing arts events. Submissions should be sent to Artin' About, Sea Coast Echo, P.O. Box 2009, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. Notices will be edited and published on a space-available basis.

Loyalty Day focuses on freedoms

Special to the Echo
By Donald Mauffray
Veterans Service Officer

The first day of May is Loyalty Day, a day that has become a tradition with the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

With the passage of Public Law 85-529 on July 18, 1958, the VFW won a long, hard battle to have Loyalty Day approved by Congress. However, this day does not belong to the VFW alone. It belongs to all Americans.

Most Americans have heard the quote: "Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country." This is a sound principle to live by in a country such as ours, where the government is elected by the people and where the public is expected to participate in the governing process.

In these times of global political turbulence, Americans should pause and ask themselves, "What have we done, and what are we doing now to demonstrate to the world just how we feel about our country?" After all, ours is a country that has held high the beacon of liberty and asked nothing of the other nations except that they send to her in the words of Emma Lazarus emblazoned on the Statue of Liberty, their "huddled masses yearning to breathe free."

Ours is a country that has taken the abstract ideal of "freedom and justice for all" and made it into a way of life.

We must pledge to maintain a free society in which loyalty is always encouraged and respected. For, without loyalty, the United States, the world's best hope for a future blessed with freedom, cannot long survive. And, if we fail, the flame of freedom will diminish and fade forever.

So, join in and become a part of the Loyalty Day celebrations. Let the world know that Americans are behind their country, and that America, because of this, is still a strong vibrant nation.

Our local VFW Post 3253, 343 Third St., Bay St. Louis, will be celebrating Loyalty Day on Saturday, May 2 at 2 p.m. Rep. Gene Taylor will be guest speaker.

Also on the program, awards will be presented from the post and ladies auxiliary to individuals for outstanding services to our communities and organizations.

We will also have dedication ceremonies for a flag that Rep. Taylor will present to our post. The flag will be one that has flown over our Capitol in Washington, D.C.

There will be food and refreshments, and the public is cordially invited and urged to attend.

6th Annual Hancock County Salute To Business

Sponsored By:

Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission
Board of Supervisors and Hancock County

Waveland Business of the Year
Waveland Resort Inn

The Waveland Resort Inn is the recipient of the city of Waveland's Salute to Business and Industry.

The Lady family purchased the Waveland Resort Inn in 1976, and, under their management, it has become the premiere place to stay when in the Waveland/Bay St. Louis area.

In 1989, the "Resort", as it is commonly called, underwent a half-million dollar renovation of its facilities. The addition of "Jacuzzi Suites" has added to its attractiveness to out-of-town guests and locals. In 1990, a miniature golf course was added for both young and old alike; and, in 1991, the lounge and dining areas were renovated to enable the Resort to handle groups of up to 250 people for banquets, meetings, receptions and other events. The Resort's limousine service has been a big attraction for those who wish to be "king for a day".

Four years ago, the Lady brothers (Bill, Jim and Steve) bought out their parents' interest in the Resort and look forward to bigger and better things for our fast-growing community.

Diamondhead Business of the Year
James C. English

This year the Diamondhead Business and Professional Association honors James C. English, who is a native of Pennsylvania and is presently residing in Pass Christian.

After serving in the Marines, Jim started a TV Cable Construction Company, building systems throughout the United States. He moved to the Coast in the '60's and started Coast TV Cable, which serves several Coast communities.

Jim's operations were virtually wiped out in Hurricane Camille. He has since become a very successful businessman with considerable real estate holdings on the Coast and in Diamondhead. Jim has made a significant contribution to helping many worthy causes and has now turned his attention to fundraising for Diamondhead Academy.

Jim, his wife, Mary, and daughter, Jami, plan to follow the example set by his three sons and build a home on the bayou in Diamondhead.

At Hancock Bank, we've always been well aware that strong ties to the community we serve are vital. We recognize the importance of those ties and constantly strive to strengthen the bond between ourselves and the people we serve.

"SUPPORT HANCOCK COUNTY'S BUSINESSES"

Supervisor President Mike Ladner presents the Award of Excellence to Dan Mortimer, President of Gulf Coast Fabrications, Inc.

Award of Excellence
Dan Mortimer

In 1981, Dan Mortimer and Fred May opened Gulf Coast Fabrication, Inc. in Pass Christian, and expanded into Hancock County in 1984. Six years later, the growing company consolidated all of its activities at Port Bienville.

Gulf Coast Fabrication, the county's largest industrial employer, has 200 workers engaged in general steel fabrication, large barge and drilling rig construction, and extensive ship repair.

In recent months the company has been awarded major contracts, including one in excess of $12 million to manufacture two steel drilling rigs for a company based in France. Also, Gulf Coast Fabrication recently launched a 343-foot container barge owned by an Oregon company that will carry containers from Florida to Puerto Rico.

With expansion plans that include the addition of a second graving dock and the hiring of new personnel, Gulf Coast Fabrication, its management and employees will continue to make a significant positive impact on the county's economy.

In addition to being successful in business, Dan Mortimer has made numerous contributions to the Coast community, particularly in working to improve the quality of education, working with the Southern Development Association and the Private Industry Council.

Toulme streets. A year later they moved to a location on Highway 90. Expansion carried on and the garden center grew in size.

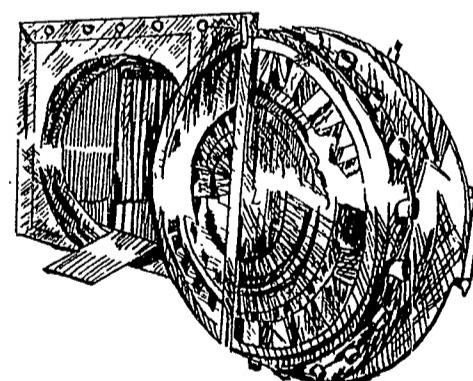

Barbara and Sam Scafidi are the essence of small business development. Gardening as a hobby was the beginning of this stable and flourishing business. Recognizing the need local property owners had for beauty following 1969's Hurricane Camille, the Scafidis began their first nursery as a home occupation at the corner of Main and Spring is like Christmas for the Scafidis. They began their major blooming season.

They truly love their work, especially helping others.

According to Barbara, "Garden Center is a great place to work."

Retail Business of the Year
Rooster's Restaurant

Chamber President Basil Kennedy, right, congratulates Andy and Lee Lott of Rooster's Restaurant, the Retail Business of the Year.

The Hancock Chamber of Commerce has selected Rooster's as the recipient of the Retail Business for 1992.

On July 17, 1982, Andy and Lee Lott named their new venture in Kiln "The Olde Rooster Delicatessen". The hodgepodge of a small cafe and service station seemed to the couple to be the perfect remedy for what could become a dull retirement, but it has become anything but, according to the Lotts.

Andy is a trained French chef who loves the classical French style of cooking and has displayed his culinary talents in some of the world's finest restaurants. After their 1961 marriage, Lee, an award-winning teacher, introduced Andy to her mother and grandmother, two formidable masters of Acadian cooking. This association has given Rooster's menu its blend of classical French and Acadian styles.

After almost 10 years of hard work, the Lotts' small cafe is serving a growing number of new customers along with their regular crowds. Recent additions to the restaurant have brought room for more dining space as well as for live entertainment.

The Lotts' goal is to continue offering the finest food and Southern hospitality at the most reasonable prices.

Industry of the Year
Con-Tech
Power Systems, Inc.

Con-Tech Power Systems Inc. has the experience, facilities and personnel to successfully undertake the design, production, construction and documentation of plant, electrical maintenance and modernization.

Con-Tech is a UL listed supplier of marine and industrial switchgear, control, automation and power distribution equipment for vessels, drill rigs and platforms with periodically unattended machinery spaces used in the offshore oil industry.

Con-Tech experience includes the supply of switchgear, automation and power distribution for most of the various types of diesel powered ships built in the United States. These systems include simple but complete electrical generation equipment control and monitoring systems for small crew boats, Coast Guard cutters (including the Island Class Cutters), offshore supply boats, tug-boats, MSC Ready Reserve Fleet vessels, dredges, large ocean-going container carriers, Venezuelan Navy LCUs, Mexican Navy Eagle Class Coast Guard Cutters and San Salvadorian Naval Combat Craft.

Con-Tech maintains an average employment of 50 and occupies a 10,000-square-foot facility built for switchgear and apparatus manufacturing on a site in Port Bienville Industrial Park. Of the 50 employees, one-third are engineers and technicians involved in the design and documentation of power and control systems.

Many of Con-Tech's technical employees are experienced automation system (electrical) professionals with 20 or more years of experience in power generation control systems design.

streets. A year later they moved to their present location on Highway 90. Expansion came rapidly as each garden center grew in size. The husband and wife added a full service florist in 1980.

It is like Christmas for the owners as flowers are in their major blooming season. Barbara and Sam enjoy their work, especially helping their customers.

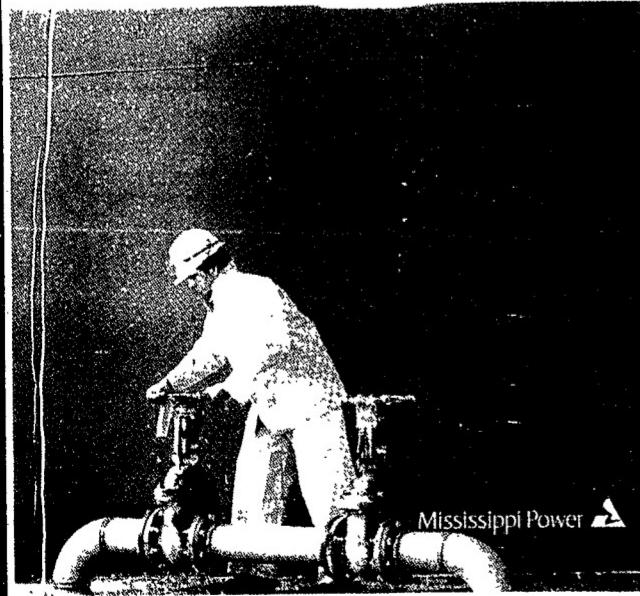

According to Barbara, "Garden Center customers are essentially nice people. They are always pleasant to work with. We do a lot of over-the-counter landscaping because our customers have a wonderful sense of caring."

Said Mayor Edward Favre, "Evergreen is a model small business. The Scafidis have shown as much care in nurturing their business as they do their products. They have trained a small but knowledgeable staff for year-round employment in a seasonal business. Bay St. Louis is very proud to recognize their efforts."
